TRUMP GROWING FRUSTRATED WITH CHINA

1 President Donald Trump is growing increasingly frustrated with China over its inaction on North Korea and bilateral trade issues and is now considering possible trade actions against Beijing, three senior administration officials told Reuters. The officials said Trump was impatient with China and was looking at a range of options, including tariffs on steel imports, which Commerce

Secretary Wilbur Ross already has said he is considering as part of a national security study of the U.S. steel industry. Whether Trump would actually take any steps against China remains unclear.

COSBY: NO PLANS FOR SEXUAL ASSAULT TOUR

2 Bill Cosby said on Tuesday he has no plans to hold town hall events to discuss sexual assault, days after his spokesman suggested the comedian planned a series of public talks to educate men about how to avoid false accusations. Cosby's spokesman, Andrew Wyatt, first put forward the idea for the town hall talks in an interview with a Birmingham, Alabama, TV station last week, five days after Cosby's sex assault trial ended in a hung jury. The proposal drew immediate criticism from a lawyer representing some of the dozens of women who have leveled sex assault accusations at the 79-year-old entertainer, whose long career was built on a family-friendly style of comedy. "The current propaganda that I am going to conduct a sexual assault tour is false," Cosby said in a statement released by Wyatt on Tuesday.

NYT: KUSHNER HIRES PROMINENT TRIAL LAWYER

3 President Donald Trump's son-in-law and adviser, Jared Kushner, has hired a prominent trial lawyer to help represent him in inquiries linked to Russia, The New York Times reported on Monday citing another member of his legal team. Kushner took on Abbe D. Lowell, the newspaper said, joining other senior administration figures including U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions, Vice President Mike Pence and Trump himself in hiring private attorneys. The White House has come under increased scrutiny since Department of Justice Special Counsel Robert Mueller and a number of congressional committees launched investigations into whether there were ties between Russia and Trump's 2016 election campaign team.

HEALTHCARE BILL VOTE DELAYED

4 Facing a potentially disastrous defeat by members of his own party, U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell decided on Tuesday to delay a vote on healthcare legislation in order to get more support from Republican senators. President Donald Trump summoned all 52 Republican senators to the White House on Tuesday afternoon to discuss how to proceed. McConnell had been pushing for a vote ahead of the July 4 recess that starts at the end of the week. The legislation would advance a repeal of major elements of Obamacare and replace it with a new federal healthcare program. The delay showed McConnell and Trump have failed so far to attract enough votes amid a solid block of Democratic opposition and attacks from both moderate and conservative Republican senators. FACEBOOK HITS 2 BILLION-USER MARK

5 Facebook Inc. said on Tuesday that 2 billion people are regularly using its flagship service, marching past another milestone in its growth from a college curiosity in the United States to the world's largest social media network. Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg disclosed the number to his followers in a Facebook post. "It's an honor to be on this journey with you," he wrote. The user base is bigger than the population of any single country, and of six of the seven continents. It represents more than a quarter of the world's 7.5 billion people. Facebook defines a monthly active user as a registered Facebook user who logged in and visited Facebook through its website or a mobile device, or used its Messenger app, in the past 30 days. It does not include people who use the Instagram or WhatsApp networks but not Facebook.

NYC subway train derails, 34 injured

The MTA has been the target of recent criticism as its aging infrastructure has led to malfunctions.

A New York City subway train derailed in Harlem on Tuesday, causing minor injuries to 34 people and forcing the evacuation of passengers from dark, smoke-filled carriages, officials and witnesses said.

Authorities said the southbound train struck a tunnel wall just before 10 a.m., causing two cars to derail near the 125th Street station in Harlem. The crash was being investigated, the city's Office of Emergency Management said.

Witnesses on the train posted photos on social media that showed damage to the floor and a door of the train.

"One lady began having a panic attack, and most people had to use their shirts to not breathe in the smoke [from the accident]. Some people are crying," one passenger, Benjamin Williams, wrote on Twitter before being evacuated.

New York City Fire Department Commissioner Daniel Nigro gave reporters details on the injuries at the scene.

Following the accident, service was suspended or rerouted on several subway lines between upper Manhattan and northern Brooklyn, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority said. Free shuttle buses ran between Columbus Circle in midtown Manhattan and points north to 145th Street.

The city's subway system, which carries 5.7 million riders on a typical weekday, has come under increasing criticism in recent months for extensive delays and infrastructure in poor condition.

The Riders Alliance, an organization of subway and bus riders in New York, blamed the derailment on the state's governor, Andrew Cuomo.

"Scared subway riders have one question: where is Gov. Cuomo?" the alliance's executive director, John Raskin, said in a statement. "As the subway crumbles from decades of neglect, Gov. Cuomo continues to point fingers instead of coming up with a credible plan to fix the MTA."

Cuomo's office did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

During an interview last month on CNBC, the Democratic governor said the federal government was to blame for not responding to the state's requests for transportation funding, leaving New York "way behind" on infrastructure.

"We haven't built an airport in over 25 years. We're not building bridges, roads, tunnels," Cuomo told CNBC. "We're now paying the price of ignoring the maintenance."

Madoff settlements reach $12 billion with new accords

The trustee recouping money for Bernard Madoff's victims on Tuesday announced nearly $371 million of new settlements with two groups of offshore funds that invested with the imprisoned Ponzi schemer, boosting the total recovery to about $12 billion.

Irving Picard, the trustee, said Lagoon Investment Ltd agreed to repay $240.7 million from an account through which Hermes International Fund Ltd. invested with Madoff, while Thema Fund Ltd. and an affiliate agreed to repay $130.1 million.

Picard announced the settlements with British Virgin Islands-based Lagoon and Bermuda-based Thema one day after revealing more than $23 million of settlements with the estates of Madoff's late sons Andrew and Mark, and entities affiliated with the Madoff family.

Bernie Madoff GETTY IMAGES

Lagoon and Thema were among many feeder funds that sent customers' money, often without their knowledge, to Bernard L. Madoff Investment Securities LLC.

Picard said the recovered sums represent money withdrawn in the six years before Madoff's fraud was uncovered in December 2008. REUTERS

RENT INCREASES

NYC Rent Guidelines Board votes to increase stabilized rents

A Tuesday night vote held at Baruch College ended with the city's Rent Guidelines Board deciding to increase rents in rent-stabilized apartments, ABC7 reported.

Tenants with one-year leases can expect an increase of 1.25 percent, with a 2 percent increase on two-year leases, ABC7 added. The 7-to-2 vote affected the city's 1.6 million residents who live in rent-stabilized apartments.

Landlords had been pushing for a 4 to 8 percent increase, saying that operating costs had risen by more than 6 percent in 2016, NY1 reported. For the previous two years, rents were frozen for residents with one-year leases, and this year, tenants were aiming for another round of freezes or even a rent rollback.

The new increases will begin taking effect on Oct. 1, NY1 added. JASON NUCKOLLS

Commuter confusion ends as South Ferry subway station reopens

The South Ferry subway station reopens after Hurricane Sandy repair work ends. WIKIMEDIA

The South Ferry subway station in the Financial District is back, almost five years after Hurricane Sandy pretty much destroyed it.

South Ferry reopened Tuesday after a four-year, $350 million repair project — and the current station known as old South Ferry, which strap-hangers have been using again to catch the 1 train since 2013, goes back into oblivion, NY1 reported.

It's OK if that sounds a bit confusing if you're not one of the thousands of New Yorkers who regularly use South Ferry and who have been living with the confusion for the past few years.

The South Ferry station that has been in use since repairs began in 2013 was an old terminal that was built in 1905 and closed in 2009 when the new, more modern station opened.

Just three years later, South Ferry's new station smell had barely worn off when Hurricane Sandy devastated much of the East Coast, including many parts of the New York metro region, including lower Manhattan. The new station, which was built below the original one, was completely flooded, destroying mechanical equipment such as switches and escalators. The MTA estimated when repairs began in 2013 that the work would cost $600 million, ABC7 reported.

The old South Ferry station, part of the city's original transit system, is a bit unique as it only fits the first five cars of modern MTA subway trains, which consist of 10 cars. That means that the trains would travel along a loop to circle back uptown, and if you were on one of the rear five cars, you'd find yourself heading back uptown.

The new station allowed modern trains to terminate at South Ferry, then head back uptown from the same platform, similar to how E trains operate at Chambers Street. NIKKI M. MASCALI

Why Knee Arthritis Sufferers Of Almost All Ages Are Opting For Newest Medical Procedures Before Surgery . . .

Fraction of the cost, minimal risk and little to no downtime amongst top reasons

By Matt Edgar

America's Health Writer

New York City - Everyone has said it at one time or another. If I had only known about "this" sooner - things would be very different today.

That's what many knee arthritis pain sufferers are saying about this technology and treatment.

"We all know that countless lives are being saved every year because of early detection and better treatment " noted the clinic director at the NY Pain MD in New York City. "The same holds true for treating arthritis pain. I believe we are having so much success at NY Pain MD because of two factors: One is we are using advanced medical technology and treatments a lot of clinics do not use. And second, the word has spread to our community and so many knee arthritis sufferers are coming in sooner. And the earlier we can treat knee arthritis - the better the results. The key to trying to avoid knee replacement surgery is doing the correct treatment as soon as possibly"

What is the "correct treatment?"

"That depends," said the director. "There is no one answer when it comes to medical conditions. Knee arthritis is no different. That's why, if you have knee pain, you should have it evaluated by a doctor who deals with and treats knee pain every day," added the director.

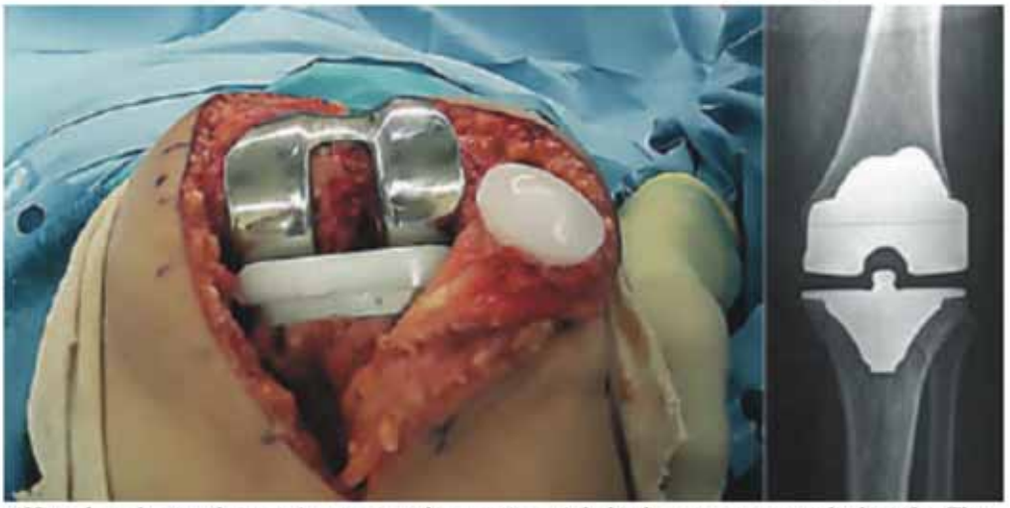
For many knee arthritis pain sufferers the right treatment is Viscosupplementation whereby a preparation of Hyaluronic acid a gel-like FDA approved medicine is applied directly into the knee joint using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

Hyaluronic acid is the natural lubricant and shock absorber of your joints and is found to be decreased in arthritis sufferers. This is similar to running your without oil. Obviously, the sooner you put oil back in the car - the less damage will be done. That's why some doctors feel early viscosupplecosupplementation gets the best results and is so important for avoiding surgery.

The director believes one of the most important factors for the success of viscosupplementation is making sure you are getting it into the joint space precisely. That's why the doctors at NY Pain MD use advanced imaging technology to apply Precision Arthritis Targeting during every treatment.

A device called the "C-Arm" allows the doctor to see into the joint and actually watch the medicine be applied exactly where it is supposed to. Research shows that performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting (P.A.T.T.)can result in missing the joint space as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation treatments without Presision Arthritis Targeting Technology and did not get good results - this may be why.



"If you have knee arthritis pain, viscosupplementation might be the answer you are looking for. The keys are not wait, get a good evaluation from an expert and make sure precision arthritis targeting is used to make sure you have the best chance for success."

Can This Be Avoided? Total knee replacement is serious surgery requiring months of rehabilitation. Some doctors think modern treatments done early enough can keep baby boomers from going under the knife.

Normal Pain-Free Knee Joint

Everyone Wants Proof:

In the artist simulated drawings, picture #1 is a normal, pain-free knee. There is no arthritis and the knee can move and bend freely without pain.

Knee With Painful Arthritis

Pain -

Illustration shown is a knee joint with painful xosteo-arthritis. Arthritis causes the joint space to decrease, grinding, stiffness, decreased motion, bone spurs,swelling and a lot of pain.

Research Shows Doctors Miss The Joint Space Up To 30% Of The Time Without Advanced Imaging

Failed Treatment -

The injection (Lubrication medicine) misses the joint space. Research shows this occurs up to 30% of the time without the use of the digital imaging to guide the injection. This is why lubrication medicine may not have worked for you

Lubrication Medicine Injected Directly Into Knee Join Like "Joint Oil" using Precision Targeting Technology

Succesful Treatment -

Sucessful Treatment - Lubrication Medicine (blue) being precisely injected directly into the knee joint using digital imaging. Advance imaging allows treatments to be as precise as possible. Lubrication medicine can lubricate the joint and decrease pain.

Modern Doctor's FINALLY Offering These Special Treatments Right Here In New York City

Hundreds of arthritis sufferers from tri state area calling weekly to find out if treatment is right for them.Often covered by insurance.

If you qualify for this treatment, it might be one of the happiest days of your life.

That's because, for the past year and a half, hundreds of knee pain sufferers have flocked to NY Pain MD New York City.

That's when their specially trained-doctors added cutting-edge arthritis treatments to their already successful comphrensive knee pain relief program.

Viscosupplementation is unique because - even-though it is manufactured by a pharmaceutical company, it is NOT considered a drug because it is a natural substance with an incredible story.

Why So Many Want It

You see, when you suffer with arthritis - the lubricating fluid (synovial fluid) in your knee joint dries up.

This means instead of gliding smoothly - your bones start to rub and grind against each other.

This causes a little pain in the beginning - but over time the pain steadily gets worse until it is excruciating.

Like "Joint Oil"

Viscosupplementation works so well because it is like 'joint oil." It is a natural substance that contains one of the natural building blocks of the synovial fluid that lubricates your knee.

Scientists and researchers discovered this natural building block to synovial fluid in the rooster's comb - that big red thing on top of the roosters head. It is extracted from the roosters comb, purified and concentrated. They have also developed medical lubricants that are also natural but made a bit like yogurt and "cultured" into highly effective arthritis pain-fighting medical lubricants.

When introduced directly into your knee joint, it is like squirting oil on a rusty door hinge.

Viscosupplementation allows your joints to glide more smoothly eliminating a lot of the rubbing, grinding and pain.

Can Supplements Do The Same Thing?

No. Glucosamine and chondroitin and other supplements are much different. You can only get this from a doctor and it often helps knee pain sufferers who got limited or no success from glucosamine and chondroitin. Beware of unsubstantiated claims made by supplements to do what this advanced medical procedure does.

Why You Should Try This Even If You've Already Had Similar Treatments Without Results...

"We have been able to help so many knee pain sufferers even many who have already tried other treatments like Synvisc, Supartz, Orthovisc and even Hyalgan. This is because our treating doctors always use "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology". This allows us to place he Viscosupplementation exactly where is needs to be. Studies show doctors doing joint injections without echnology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time." noted the Director of Center

NY Pain MD is a state of the art medical facility offering nly the best technology.

Advanced Medical Technology Can Make All The Difference: This advanced Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology using fluorososcopic imaging allows doctors to see directly into the knee joint so treatments are precise and the FDA approved lubricating medicine actually goes EXACLTY where it is supposed to. Studies show that procedures done without this technology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time. This is one reason Viscosupplementation may not have worked for you in the past. NY Pain MD uses this P.A.T. Imaging Technology. with each and every treatment.

And that's not all :

"Every case is individual. Some patients get quite a bit of relief right away - others take a little more time. But most have been extremely happy. We've noted results lasting no less than 6 months for many but up to 2 years for some patients.. Patients who were suffering for years with bad knee pain are getting their lives back... going for walks again and exercising. It's amazing to see. They tell all their friends - that's why we are swarmed. After getting treatment and feeling better, many patients have decided to cancel their total knee replacement surgeries." added the director.

How To Find Out If It Can HelpYou?

If you have knee pain, the NY Pain MD doctors would like to invite you for a no-obligation screening to see if you are a candidate for their treatments using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

Queens Library Rolls Out Summer Programs for All Ages

WRITTEN & PRESENTED BY Queens Library

School's out in New York City, which means that summer is in full swing. Queens Library is ready, rolling out a number of diverse summer programs for all ages. From concerts featuring Broadway performers to child and adult literary events to a hotly anticipated poetry contest, you can expect something for everyone this summer.

"We're very excited to offer so many classes, programs and events for library customers of all ages and interests," said Queens Library President and CEO Dennis M. Walcott. "Whether you're a child, a teen, or an adult, you'll find something to love this summer at Queens Library."

Woven into each event is this summer's theme: Build a Better World. You'll see this reflected in the Summer Poetry Contest. Spotlighting four different age categories, Queens Library is inviting local writers to get creative in under 250 words. Whether you're a novice poet or a seasoned writer, you'll have the opportunity to share your work. What's more, the winners will get to read their poetry at a celebratory award ceremony before it's published in Queens Library Magazine.

The Summer Reading Program is the perfect complement, suggesting a wide array of books that fit into the Build a Better World theme; all titles were chosen to inspire ways we can all change the world, one book at a time. The program is currently open to all ages and covers bestselling fiction and nonfiction selections. For kids, it's a wonderful way to prevent reading regression (also known as "summer slump"). Meanwhile, adults can connect with others in their community over a good book.

If your child is more of a tech enthusiast, they can hit up Queens Library this summer to learn how to code for free with Scratch, an interactive and safe online community where kids can sharpen their programming skills. Once they get the basics down, they can create their own stories, video game designs, digital art, music videos and more. This is a fantastic way to nurture computer science skills and get kids excited about tech.

Queens Library is also the place to go for free summer meals for kids and teens. The initiative, kicking off tomorrow and running through September 1, offers no-cost lunch all summer long for anyone 18 and under; registration is not required. The service is available at specific branches Monday to Friday from 1:00 to 2:00. (To learn more, visit: www.queenslibrary.org/events/summer-meals)

Of course, there's plenty on offer for adults as well. The library's Culture Connection program spotlights amazing arts and culture activities right in the heart of Queens. This takes celebrated programming from the world of music, publishing, theater and film, and makes it accessible at Queens Library's Central branch.

This summer's agenda is packed with a number of knockout performances. The next one, taking place on Thursday, July 6 at 6:30, is A Summer Evening with Broadway Singer Michael Williams. Williams, along with award-winning music director Charles Duke, will dazzle the audience with a live performance.

Music lovers can also delight over the third annual Battle of the Bands competition on July 27. New York's best emerging bands will be packing the house at the 2,100-seat Colden auditorium at Queens College's Kupferberg Center for the Arts.

The best part of all these programs is that they are free!

Visit queenslib.org/funsummer17 to get all the details on Queens Library's summer programs. See you there!

Jellied sea creatures confound scientists and fishermen on the Pacific Coast

No relation to jellyfish, they resemble bumpy, opaque pickles in the water, typically a few centimeters or inches long, though some grow 1 or 2 feet in length.

Pyrosomes – colonies of thousands of individual organisms called zooids – are pictured aboard a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration research vessel in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Oregon. HILARIE SORENSEN/NOAA FISHERIES HANDOUT

Drifting throngs of jelly-like, glowing organisms native to tropical seas far from shore have invaded Pacific coastal waters from Southern California to the Gulf of Alaska this year, baffling researchers and frustrating fishing crews.

Known as pyrosomes, they are tubular colonies of hundreds or thousands of tiny creatures called zooids, enmeshed together in a gelatinous tunic roughly the consistency of gummy bear candy.

They feed by filtering microscopic algae, or phytoplankton, as they float with the current, and are known to glow in the dark — a bioluminescent characteristic that gives the organism its scientific name — pyrosoma, Greek for "fire body."

Pyrosomes have rarely if ever been seen along the West Coast until 2012, when first spotted in California waters. Since then, they have gradually multiplied and spread north, before exploding in numbers this spring, according to scientists with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Although harmless to humans, they have been especially troublesome to the commercial salmon catch in Oregon, with large globs of the rubbery critters clogging fishing gear by the thousands in recent months. Some have even washed ashore.

"It gets to a point where they're so abundant, you can't even fish out there, so you have to pick up your gear and move elsewhere," Nancy Fitzpatrick, executive director of the Oregon Salmon Commission, said Monday.

A single five-minute trawl with a research net by scientists off the Columbia River in late May scooped up roughly 60,000 pyrosomes, NOAA reported.

> "It gets to a point where they're so abundant, you can't even fish out there, so you have to pick up your gear and move elsewhere."
> Fitzpatrick

Fishermen were also hit in southeastern Alaska, where some crews suspended operations earlier this year when pyrosome densities were at their height, said Aaron Baldwin, a fishery biologist for the Alaska Department of Fish and Game.

"There were clouds of them in the water," he said.

Karen Johnson, who fishes for halibut and tracks pyrosome reports on her Facebook page in Sitka, Alaska, said she has personally seen them glowing in a bucket of live specimens caught by her brother.

"I stuck them in a dark room, and moved the water a little bit, and sure enough, they were bioluminescent," she told Reuters. REUTERS

- My toenails are streaked, discolored and thickened.
- The sides of my toenails dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight- they are all cocked-up, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thick no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly – sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rash, or open sores.

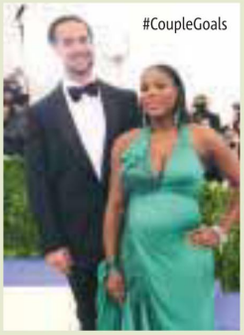
Serena & Alexis' rom-com-worthy meet cute

Vanity Fair, a publication obsessed with having naked pregnant celebrity ladies on the cover, has the oral history of how the "seemingly mismatched" — their words — pairing of Serena Williams and fiancé Alexis Ohanian came to be.

The year was 2015. The month was May. The place? Rome, duh. At the Cavalieri Hotel, Williams and her mini-entourage of three sat down to order breakfast. Then Ohanian came down to have breakfast too and sat down at the table next to Serena — even though many, many other tables were free.



Sounds like a nightmare, right? "We were trying to get him to move and get out of there," said Williams, embodying "Mean Girls," and basically saying, "You can't sit with us!" And then, Serena said the first words ever to her future husband.

"We don't want you sitting there. We're going to use that table." And when Williams' friend told Ohanian there were rats by his table, the Reddit co-founder said, "I'm from Brooklyn. I see rats all the time."

Just like a rom-com.

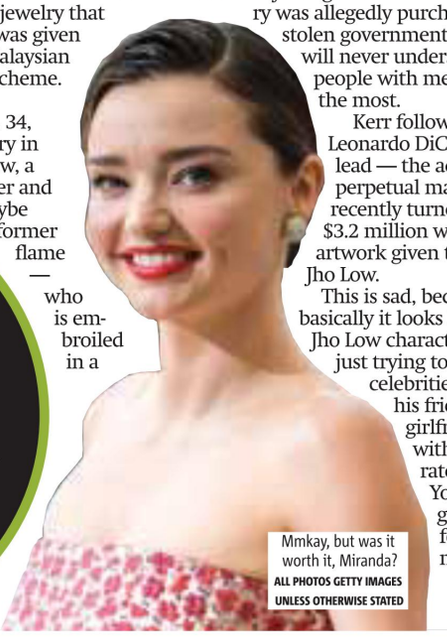
Miranda Kerr loves herself some jewelry

Australian model and former born-again virgin Miranda Kerr has handed over $8.1 million of jewelry that U.S. authorities say was given to her as part of a Malaysian money-laundering scheme. Oh, dear.

Apparently, Kerr, 34, was gifted the jewelry in 2014 by Jho Low, a financier and maybe former flame — who is embroiled in a corruption scandal that's taken over the Malaysian government. The jewelry was allegedly purchased with stolen government money. I will never understand why people with means do the most.

Kerr follows Leonardo DiCaprio's lead — the actor and perpetual man-child recently turned over $3.2 million worth of artwork given to him by Jho Low.

This is sad, because basically it looks like this Jho Low character was just trying to persuade celebrities to be his friends (or girlfriend!) with elaborate gifts. You don't got to pay for friends, man.



Mmkay, but was it worth it, Miranda?

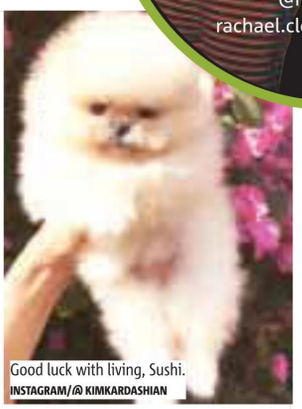
Kim finally named North's puppy

In utterly fascinating news, Kim Kardashian has decided on a name for daughter North West's new puppy. Exciting!

On June 17, the 36-year-old revealed that she had gotten sister puppies for North and her niece Penelope — daughter of Kourtney Kardashian and Scott Disick. "Penelope named hers Honey," she wrote on her Instagram. "What should we name ours?"

This question proved difficult for the "Keeping Up With the Kardashians" star. So on Tuesday, she pleaded with her Twitter followers to help. Names are hard! She made a poll with North's final four: Baby Jesus, Peachy Pop aka Peaches, Sushi and Goldie. I, like almost everyone else, voted for Peachy Pop. But apparently, Kardashian never wanted anybody's opinion in the first place.

"FYI the puppy's name is Sushi," she wrote early Tuesday morning. Well thanks for telling us our opinions don't mean s—, Kim!

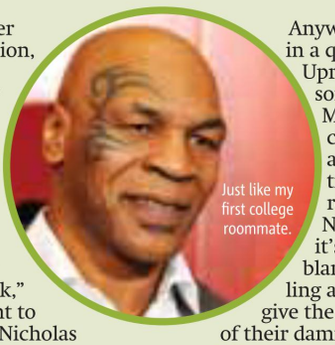


Good luck with living, Sushi.
INSTAGRAM/@ KIMKARDASHIAN

Here's hoping Sushi will fare better than Kim's other pets — she once had a dog named Dolce, but he was mysteriously killed by a coyote, and she's admitted to "not being the biggest animal person." Yikes!

Mike Tyson loves 'The Notebook,' too

Mike Tyson — former heavyweight champion, who, never forget, once bit off Evander Holyfield's ear — has a confession to make. And that confession is that he loves Noah and Allie's tale as much as you do.



Yeah, I'm talking about "The Notebook," a weepy film brought to us by trash novelist Nicholas Sparks that later spawned a great deal of movies about white people in rural parts of America falling in love. I mean, "The Longest Ride"? Come on.

Anyway, Tyson took part in a questionnaire with Uproxx, and there are some gems. He loves Migos! If he had to choose between cats and dogs, he'd choose tigers! And he can't resist watching "The Notebook" whenever it's on. And who can blame him? Ryan Gosling and Rachel McAdams give the best performances of their damn lives!

What other, uh, "romantic" movies are up Tyson's alley? He doesn't say, but I'm guessing Tyson's Netflix homepage says he likes movies with a strong female lead.

5 Reasons 'Baby Driver' is the summer's best big movie

Arriving like the cavalry to save the depressingly franchise-heavy season, the latest from Edgar Wright stars Ansel Elgort as a young getaway driver who's also an ear buds-addicted audiophile. Here are five ways the movie, out today, goes against the modern blockbuster grain to come out on top. MATT PRIGGE

1 It's the rare action-comedy that works

Action and comedy are two great things that, we'd argue, rarely go well together. Ramp up the comedy, and suddenly we're not taking the action seriously; ramp up the action, and suddenly things aren't so funny anymore. Edgar Wright has always been more about comedy than action; "Hot Fuzz" is a loving action parody, whose genuinely thrilling moments are framed by giant quotation marks. With "Baby Driver," he loses those quotation marks. But amazingly, the comedy still hurts. His action scenes are visceral rushes, but they also find time for visual gags. And it gets to the heart of what makes action, when done right, so thrilling: We're laughing because we're excited.

Jamie Foxx is no fan of getaway motorist Ansel Elgort in Edgar Wright's "Baby Driver." COLUMBIA PICTURES

2 It's by a real director allowed to do his thing

Recently, "21 Jump Street" and "The Lego Movie" directors Phil Lord and Christopher Miller were fired from the Han Solo spin-off movie for being too them. Let's hope they make like Edgar Wright, who four years ago walked off "Ant-Man" due to creative differences with Marvel. The movie he made instead, "Baby Driver," is 100 percent uncut Edgar Wright. It's filled with all the things he loves, quick with a joke and quick with action. In other words, it feels like it was made by one particular person. This is the film you'd show to today's studio execs when you tell them that gifting filmmakers with final cut is not something you forbid.

3 It has a killer soundtrack

One of "Drivers'" main hooks is that Elgort's Baby insists on doing his getaway gigs with his ear buds in, cranking up a carefully selected song timed right down to the second. And so we get The Damned. T. Rex. Dave Brubeck. Barry White. Boards of Canada. Deep-cut Blur. This doesn't only make the scenes more exciting; it gives each one its own flair, its own personality. Even when Wright uses a song for nonchase-scene purposes — as when Baby flirts with a diner waitress (Lily James) by playing her Beck's "Debra" — the moment is transcendent. Sound is something few viewer's pay attention to, but Wright forces you to listen.

4 It doesn't play nice

Movies are way too nice these days. "Baby Driver" isn't always nice. It has a good heart, with a likeable lead; Baby only wants to get out of the crime business, but they (or at least a kingpin played by Kevin Spacey) keep pulling him back in. His attempts to get out for good, with his new ladyfriend in tow, isn't easy. It involves fighting Spacey, as well as fellow criminals, including a hothead (Jamie Foxx) and a cokehead played by a winningly against-type Jon Hamm. There are unexpected deaths; there are shocking plot twists. It's the kind of movie big studio execs would ruin through too many notes. But Wright didn't make this for a big studio.

5 It doesn't need a sequel

It's depressing to talk about movies this way — that we even have to address the possibility of spin-offs and sequels and franchises. It cheapens a film that stands on its own just fine. It also reminds us how few big movies these days are rewatchable. Instead, most Marvel movies are forgettable, to be replaced by some forthcoming sequel or fellow Cinematic Universe entry. So much of their running times are eaten up with setting up future installments or following up on plot threads planted in previous outings. They live primarily in the past or the future; they rarely live in the present. "Baby Driver" is all about the present, and it's so jam-packed with goodness that it does what all truly great movies do: It makes us want to see it again as soon as possible.

"I SAVED MY FRIEND'S LIFE"

"I found my friend slumped on her bed turning blue. She couldn't breathe. I ran to get my naloxone and gave it to her. I thought she was dead. When she came to, she didn't know what had happened or why I was crying. I'm glad I had naloxone. It gave her a second chance."

Debi Mazar, right, plays Maggie, Liza's (Sutton Foster) best friend and roommate on "Younger." Season 4 airs Wednesday, June 28 at 10 p.m. on TV Land. TVLAND

Debi Mazar says 'Younger' is too white

The veteran actress talks season four of the TV Land comedy.

KATE MOONEY
kate.mooney@metro.us

Debi Mazar is the spitfire that shakes up every production.

The 52-year-old actress, whom you might know as Vincent Chase's blunt publicist Shauna on "Entourage," or Henry Hill's smart-mouthed, coke-snorting girlfriend Sandy in "Goodfellas," brings her signature attitude and charm to the role of Maggie on "Younger."

On the TV Land comedy, filmed in Williamsburg, the NYC native plays Liza's (Sutton Foster) best friend and roommate, an older, lesbian artist, probably the only real grown-up on the show. Although it was Maggie's idea that Liza lie about her age (40, not 26) to get her job in publishing, Mazar says it was a necessary fib.

"You gotta hustle in life. It's New York," she explains. "[Liza] has a teenager in college! She's got a deadbeat ex-husband who gambled away the money. She's trying to get a job. Who cares if she lies?"

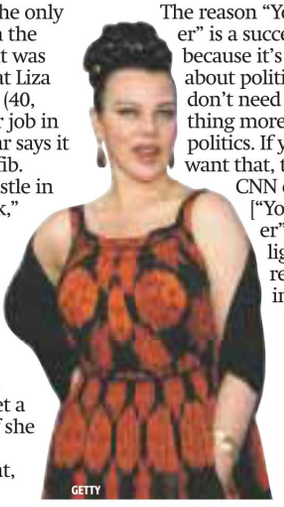
When we chat, the Windsor Terrace resident is headed to Ireland to film the "Younger" season four finale. She lets us in on the fact that it's going to be "dramatic": At the close of season three, Liza came clean about her real age to her other bestie, Kelsey (Hilary Duff), and season four, out tonight, is about the repercussions.

"The truth's coming out," Mazar says. "Liza's been spinning her little web, and things are starting to unravel."

This season, the Kellyanne Conway-esque pundit (Kristin Chenoweth) is pitching a book that's basically about alternative facts. Is "Younger" getting political?

Not at all. She's not like Kellyanne Conway, she's like Kristin Chenoweth.

The reason "Younger" is a success is because it's not about politics. We don't need anything more about politics. If you want that, turn CNN on. ["Younger"] is light, refreshing fun.



How is the Brooklyn depicted in the show different from the Brooklyn that you know?

I don't live the Brooklyn life that's on the show. I'm not a hipster, I'm a mom. I stay home, I run my errands, I see my friends. On the show, I get to do that. They'll say, "You're not in the next two scenes," so I'll get two hours in Williamsburg. I take myself out for lunch, I go to little shops. I feel like I'm on location in a different country, almost.

What makes "Younger" relatable?

What women tell me is that they've been through exactly the same thing. They took some time off or had kids and then tried to come back to work. It's an experience that I, as an actress, have somewhat felt in aging, but I have always managed to work. I'm like, "OK, I can't be bitter." I keep my chin up and say, "F— everybody, I'm gonna own it and figure it out." I think some of my best roles are yet to come.

This show is very pro-women. I'd like to see more color in the show, quite frankly, but [my character] seems to have affairs with mostly black and Latin women, so I'm responsible for bringing some color. [Laughs]

Season four of "Younger" premieres tonight at 10 p.m. on TV Land.

All men must go on this tour

Leave your scythes at home, but do wear your house colors proudly. MACALL B. POLAY, HBO

Explore the Met on a "Game of Thrones"-themed tour to find out how real relics inspired the fantasy series.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

Last we checked, there were no dragons at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, but that's not stopping a "Game of Thrones"-themed tour from launching there this month.

If anyone can do it, it's Museum Hack, the alternative tour company that trades less in the stuff you could read off the plaques and more the sexy and scandalous behind-the-scenes stories of how they came about.

Lasting one-and-a-half hours, the tour claims to "dive back into the scandals, triumphs, and tragedies of the Seven Kingdoms." Sounds promising, with just the tiny little problem that the Met is full of actual relics from the real world and Westeros is, well, not exactly on any maps.

The beauty of this, dear nerds, is that the series is both nowhere and everywhere. "We've mined the Met for George R.R. Martin's real-life inspiration and chosen the examples most likely to knock a wildling's boots off," according to Museum Hack. Think the Colossus of Rhodes as the precursor to the Titan of Braavos and an entire medieval hall full of the weapons that are totally worthless against Whitewalkers, but aren't they neat?

Museum Hack also offers regular tours of the Met, if you must. PROVIDED

The tour claims to be for the die-hard fans who know the series' real name is "A Song of Ice and Fire" as well as those who love them but don't know the difference between Winterfell and Dorne, which sounds like some Red Woman-level magic.

While expertise is not necessary, they do ask you to dress in your preferred House's colors. Choose your allegiance wisely — along the way, your "wits, courage, and dexterity will be tested," and while there's no Iron Throne in it for you (would you really want it, anyway?) there is a prize to be won.

The "Game of Thrones" tours will take place July 7 at 6:30 p.m., July 9 at 1 p.m., July 15 at 3:30 p.m. and July 16 at 2 p.m. and are only for fans 16 and older. Your $39 ticket includes admission to the Met.

In case you needed a reminder, the shortened seven-episode Season 7 of "Game of Thrones" premieres Sunday, July 16, at 10 p.m. on HBO.

Flushing's other condo boom

Developers in the Queens neighborhood are doubling down on commercial condos.

TheRealDeal.com is a daily blog and monthly magazine covering real estate in the New York metro area.

THE REAL DEAL

The streets of Flushing, New York City's largest Chinatown, are swarming with visitors from all over the tri-state area going to doctor's offices, law firms and other businesses in the neighborhood. And members of Flushing's booming community of professionals have a long-standing tendency to buy — rather than rent — office space.

That preference has translated into an unusually active commercial condo market.

"Flushing's a unique market — it's got a heavy Asian concentration, and traditionally the Asian community is made up of owners as opposed to renters," said Daniel Wechsler, head of the investment sales division at Ariel Property Advisors. "So there's more product being built to cater to that demographic, which is why you see it in Flushing really more than other parts of the city."

Last year, there were 56 office condo sales totaling $79.9 million in Flushing — the most the market has seen since 2007, when there were 107 sales worth a combined $100.6 million — according to data from Ariel Property.

And the activity has continued in 2017. The Queens neighborhood is getting the single-largest injection of new office-condo product in its history with 75 coming on line at F&T's 1.8-million-square-foot Flushing Commons, 47 units across 80,000 square feet under construction at its 1.2-million-square-foot Tangram, two blocks away, and 32 office condos at Onex Real Estate Partners' SkyView.

Rangers will rely on free agency

While their division improves, the Blueshirts have to wait for free agency to make their moves.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

There has been no shortage of wheeling and dealing around the NHL throughout the last week or so since the Vegas expansion draft.

But the New York Rangers have been generally quiet despite making some notable transactions.

Veteran defenseman Dan Girardi's contract was bought out before New York dealt forward Derek Stepan and goalie Antti Raanta to the Arizona Coyotes for the No. 7 pick of last Friday's NHL draft and defenseman Anthony DeAngelo.

With that pick, the Rangers selected forward Lias Andersson, one of the highest-rated European skaters in the 2017 draft class.

While it's a solid addition, the rest of the Metropolitan Division is improving by leaps and bounds.

On the trade front, the Islanders acquired Jordan Eberle from the Edmonton Oilers and the Columbus Blue Jackets picked up Artemi Panarin from the Chicago Blackhawks. In the draft, the New Jersey Devils selected Nico Hischier with the first pick while the Philadelphia Flyers' consolation was the explosive Nolan Patrick.

Of course, this is being added to a division that already contains the Washington Capitals and the two-time defending Stanley Cup champion Pittsburgh Penguins.

The clock is ticking for the Rangers to go out and make something happen, or else they are going to be left behind in hockey's toughest division.

Lucky for them, the moves they made freed up over $20 million worth of cap space that can be used on the free-agent market, which opens July 1.

The largest need for the team is for a top-tier defenseman that can take some pressure off goaltender Henrik Lundqvist. They also are desperate for a quarterback of the power play, which was a train wreck during the postseason.

Kevin Shattenkirk fits both of those needs as the heavy-shooting right-hander is one of the top prizes to be had on the free-agent market.

He also grew up in New Rochelle idolizing Brian Leetch and the Rangers. Can't get much of a better fit than that.

But there is also an infusion of offensive talent that needs to be added to replace the losses of Stepan and Oscar Lindberg, who was taken by the Golden Knights in the expansion draft. It's likely that the Rangers will take a look at physical forward Alexander Radulov who played last season with the Montreal Canadiens.

Nick Bonino and even veteran Joe Thornton could also be viewed as options to come in and help open up the offense. Bonino can bring close to 20 goals to the table while Thornton has some of the best on-ice vision that the game has seen in the last 15 years.

He can also come on and take the likes of younger play makers like Chris Kreider and Kevin Hayes under his wing.

Free agent defenseman Kevin Shattenkirk could be the Rangers' big prize this offseason. GETTY IMAGES

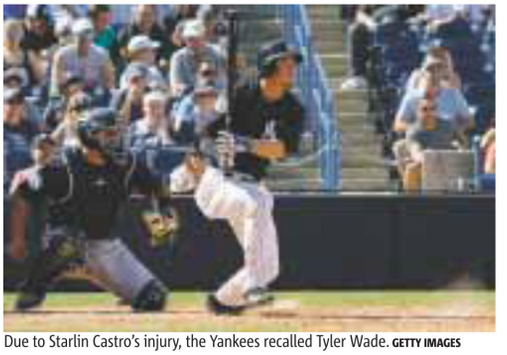
Yankees call up Wade, more could be on the way very soon



Due to Starlin Castro's injury, the Yankees recalled Tyler Wade. GETTY IMAGES

These are troubling times in the Bronx, even if the New York Yankees are somehow still in first place in the AL East.

Monday night's 6-5 win over the Chicago White Sox provided a rare triumph in a stretch that has seen the Pinstripes win just three of their last 13 games.

The injury bug has made its way from Queens over to Yankee Stadium as the Yankees have seen CC Sabathia, Aaron Hicks, Starlin Castro and Adam Warren all go down with injuries.

Before Monday's game, Yankees general manager Brian Cashman spoke with 98.7 ESPN Radio where he talked about the return of Jacoby Ellsbury and the possibility of some new faces joining the team.

"So getting him [Ellsbury] back will help. And we've got a couple more kids we're going to have to consider coming up at some point if it can help us."

Tyler Wade got the call-up on Tuesday morning to help fill the void of losing Castro. He batted .313 with a .390 on-base percentage and 24 stolen bases in 71 games with triple-A Scranton/Wilkes-Barre.

Outfielders Clint Frazier and Dustin Fowler could join him soon with Hicks out. Each player has hit 12 home runs while Fowler has one more RBI (42) in one less game played (69) compared to Frazier.

On the mound, Caleb Smith, Chance Adams and Domingo Acevedo might get a look at a jump to the big leagues. Smith has been electrifying this season with a 6-0 record, 2.25 ERA and 72 strikeouts in 76 innings pitched.

Knee Arthritis Pain?
FREE Video And Report reveals cutting- edge medical treatments every knee arthritis sufferer should know about Modern medicine has come a long way. The success stories and lives saved are endless.

And now, through advanced technology and science - skilled medical doctors are helping more knee arthritis pain sufferers than ever before.

But with the blistering pace modern medicine advances... how do you know what treatments are your best options and what doctors offers them? Here is how....

This is Matt from NYC Pain MD. NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic in New York City that has medical doctors specially trained in the most advanced, cutting-edge knee arthritis treatments available.

And we have put together an information kit that that details some of these advanced medical procedures that have already helped thousands. Including what you need to know about joint lubricating injections, platelet rich plasma (PRP), stem cell therapy... and more.

The free information kit contains a video and report that will also explain the two arthritis treatments paths you should know about and what "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" is and why is might relieve your pain.

How To Get Your Free Information Kit

All you have to do is go to paintreatmentnyc.com and put your name and email address in the space provided and we will email you a video and PDF report detailing what treatment options could be the best for your arthritis pain and how we might be able to help you.

Just go to Paintreatmentnyc.com put your name and email in the form and you will have the free information kit in minutes.

We will also send you a way to get a free screening to see if you qualify for one of our treatments. It is 100% free with no further obligation. If you are interested... awesome. If not, that's ok... at least you will have all the information.

After getting this information and watching the video... you will breathe a big sigh of relief knowing what your best options are and what treatments might finally relieve some or even all of your knee arthritis pain.

P.S. We are real doctors and you will be getting real medical advice about real medical treatments. This is not some fake "wonder cure." This is only for you if you are looking for a possible real medical solution for your knee arthritis pain.

P.P.S. If you have any questions, feel free to call right now 800-832-8426

Who could the Mets sell this summer?

The Mets' once-promising 2017 campaign has been a disaster. It's time for the team to sell. But who goes?

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

MATT HARVEY

Harvey's value on the trade market is probably so low right now that the Mets would most likely scoff at the offers that came their way if they were to make him available. A fractured relationship with the club, injuries and poor performances on the mound will only push Harvey toward leaving when he becomes a free agent in two years. The Mets should start fielding offers now.

ASDRUBAL CABRERA

The shortstop has made it known that he wants to be traded due to the Mets playing him at second base. Given the way his season has been going with injuries, it might not be easy for the Mets to send him off. New York also might not want to deal him because he is their most valuable available infielder right now with Neil Walker being injured and Jose Reyes having the worst season of his career.

With Cabrera's contract up at the end of the season, the Mets should find a way to get something in return for him before he walks in free agency.

LUCAS DUDA

The streaky power hitter has proven unreliable at the dish and at the doctor's office. But an American League team that is looking for pop at first base would love to give Duda a chance, especially if that team has a short right field porch. Hmm, I think there's one of those teams across town.

CURTIS GRANDERSON

If there is anyone that doesn't deserve to be traded, it's Granderson. The consummate professional has represented the Mets fantastically during his tenure here. However, he's not doing the team any good as a fourth outfielder and could be dealt to a contender that needs some added power near either end of their lineup.

JAY BRUCE

Bruce has been one of the Mets' most important bats throughout this tumultuous season, which could only drive his trade value up for a team looking for a rental around the trade deadline. Look for a team in the midst of a playoff push to come asking about him.

Aries Just because you are a pioneer doesn't mean that you must indulge in every new thing. Careful consideration will spare you angst and unnecessary costs.

Taurus Help the ones you love. What you do will be well received and will put you in high regard. A business expense should be monitored closely.

Gemini Keep your emotions under control and your mind focused on the changes you can bring about. Don't count on someone to give you sound advice.

Cancer Know your limitations and refrain from taking on too much or overspending. Stick to tried-and-true means and methods, and avoid confusion.

Leo Look over your financial and personal papers carefully. Don't give anyone access to your passwords or information that might be used against you.

Virgo Your instincts will not be wrong when dealing with partnerships or those you love. Express your thoughts and don't overdo it, overspend or put up with excessive people.

Libra Welcome changes that will make your life easier, but make sure you can afford the updates before you begin. Lowering your personal expenses will ease stress.

Scorpio Being honest about your feelings will lead to answers to problems that have been causing you stress. Taking a short trip or doing fact-finding is in your best interest.

Sagittarius Emotions will surface. Don't dodge issues or offer false information just to spare someone's feelings. Honesty is a priority and should not be ignored.

Capricorn Sign up for an activity that will broaden your mind or offer innovative life philosophies that will help you keep a positive attitude and set appropriate goals.

Aquarius Joint ventures will not turn out as anticipated. Make sure you read the fine print of any deal. Don't trust what someone tells you regarding money or legal matters.

Pisces Get involved in events that address issues that concern you. Children will have an impact on your life, offering a different perspective on a situation. EUGENIA LAST
